

Terms of Agreement

The information provided in the Performers Advantage website (www.performersadvantage.com) is for educational purposes only and should not be viewed as medical advice. The content provided should not replace any advice given by a physician or health care professional. If you have a medical question or concern, please contact your health care provider.

I agree to accept sole risk in using the information and exercises provided on the Performer's Advantage website. Performer's Advantage makes every effort to provide the most current, reliable information but does not guarantee the accuracy, reliability or content of any information, service or product. Children and adults should receive a physical examination before participating in any activity, program or exercise to assure that the individual is healthy prior to use of information/exercises on website.

The authors make no representation of warranties, expressed or implied, in regard to the completeness of the information given and disclaim any liability implied, in connection with Performer's Advantage. Performer's Advantage accepts no liability from any injury, loss or damage incurred by the use of, or reliance on, the information.